SECRETARY OF THE NAVY DANIELS DECLARES NO NATION IS TO BE TRUSTED IN AFFAIRS HAVING TO DO WITH FUEL OIL FOR AMERICAN BATTLESHIPS

Declares He Will Fight For Legislation Which Will Insure An Adequate Supply of Oil For Navy Whether He Is In Or Out of Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Asserting that no nation in the world is to be trusted when it comes to fuel oil, and communications, Secretary of the Navy Daniels said today he would fight "in office or out" for legislation to insure an adequate supply of oil for the American navy.

He announced himself as favoring the Phelan bill, which would authorize this government to purchase and operate oil fields in other countries and said immediate steps should be taken to secure oil bases abroad for our ships.

"We are fairly well equipped in this respect, but we must not stand still," he said.

The secretary said he would continue to use his war time power to commandeer fuel oil, just so long as it is necessary to protect the navy from attempts on the part of producers to extort exorbitant prices.

"Some say the war is over," he said. "If it is I have no official knowledge of it, especially when it is a question of protecting the government from oil profiteers."

Repeating his assertion that no coal burner can fight an oil burner on anything like equal terms, the secretary urged that the oil supply be conserved for the navy and merchant marine, and insisted that the government should be constantly on its guard against encroachments on its oil reserve by private concerns.

The navy now has five underground oil reserves, totalling approximately 213,584 acres. They are located in Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Nevada and California.

"For seven years," Daniels said, "it has been necessary for the navy department to be vigilant to prevent the exploitation of these reserves by trespassers, who had no legal right to the oil set aside for naval use. Not a week passes but finds pressure to lease oil reserves and the demand for turning these reserves over to present operation increases."

"To all appeals the navy has the answer of John Paul Jones 'I have just begun to fight.' So long as I am Secretary of the Navy I will never consent to the loss of any portion of the naval oil reserve and as long as I live in private or public life I will continue to serve my country by opposing the well organized effort to obtain these reserves."

FRENCH PAPER CHARGES THAT ENGLAND IS CROWDING FRANCE OUT OF NEAR EAST

Numbered arrows indicate main points of friction mentioned by "The Matin."

- 1—The Matin, a French newspaper, complains that England is gradually crowding France out of the near east. England now controls Constantinople, it claims.
- 2—Further, the paper asserts, England is virtually keeping Constantinople, the enemy of France, in power in Greece. This amounts almost to a protectorate over that country.
- 3—British patrols, it is charged, have so far not prevented gun running along the Turkish coast. These arms, it claims, find their way into the hands of France's enemies in Turkey.
- 4—The British are encouraging the Zionist movement in Palestine and the independence of the Hedjaz. These moves, it charges, encourage the Arabs to war upon the French in the French sphere in the hope of obtaining similar concessions.
- 5—It claims that the British policy in Turkey proper is encouraging resistance to the French, who are near the trouble spots, while the British are not. England in giving Armenia over to the Turks and the Bolsheviks strengthens the latter's position enormously.
- 6—At the same time England is using all means to insure herself possession of the rich lands of Mesopotamia and Persia, it concludes.

LOCAL LODGE HAS SPLENDID COURSE OF ENTERTAINMENTS

The Coshocton Aerie No. 761, Fraternal Order of Eagles will present during the remainder of the theatrical season six high class lyceum entertainment companies. Each number will be played at the Sixth Street theatre.

The entertainment companies are composed of musicians, comedians, and other entertainers. The companies are:

1. Henry and Company, the master magician, cartoonist and sand painter.
2. The Chester R. Scott Co. is composed of musicians. Mr. Scott is a cornet player and his assistants are artists in music, dialogues and comic entertainment.
3. Mather Hilburn is known as one of the cleverest impersonators on the lyceum circuit. He cleverly impersonates various characters.
4. The Zedler Symphonic Quintet will entertain the audience with music of the highest class. No instrumental company in the United States it is claimed, has a greater reputation for high class music than this quintet. It is said to be the best outfit of musicians ever featured on a chautauqua lyceum course.
5. The Pierces, of Boston, will entertain the Coshocton theatre-goers in dramatizations and other novelty entertainment. The Pierces are well known by local people. Mr. Pierce and his wife have delighted audiences for the past 16 years in every state of the union. Harry Pierce is the star of the company.
6. A company which excels in music, drama and both vocal and instrumental music is the Freeman Hammond entertainers. This company is a product of the Elias Day school. All music lovers and theatre attendants who enjoy good clean plays should not miss this attraction.

The Eagle lodges all over the country are putting on entertainments during the winter months. The local organization is selling season tickets for the six lyceum entertainments.

The dates for the six numbers will be announced later. The first number will be Saturday evening, with Henry and Company at the Sixth Street Theatre.

RILEY TAKES HIS SEAT IN COUNCIL; BUDGET IS PASSED

Ordinance Prohibiting the Dumping of Ashes In Alleys Discussed

PAVING BILL IS PAID

A. E. Riley was duly qualified as councillor from Ward 3 to take the place of Owen Popplum, resigned, by Mayor W. S. Tish immediately before the council meeting, Wednesday evening. The meeting was a continuation of the meeting called for Monday night.

Under the reading of communications and bills, the appropriations for the city budget for the next six months was read. As a majority of the councilmen had reviewed the appropriation at a meeting held last week for that purpose, the budget was passed upon in short order and with but little discussion.

The question of what to do with streets and alleys in the city that are in such a condition as to be causing numerous complaints of the residents using the highways, was brought up by President of Council H. E. Norris. Councilman Sahling expressed his opinion that the dumping of ashes and other refuse in the alleys has caused the irregularity in the surface, in many instances complained of. The ordinance against such a practice was (Continued on Page Eight)

PAST YEAR HAS CONTAINED NO SURPRISES IN BUSINESS WAY

Federal Reserve Bank Statement For December Says Only the Expected Has Happened

HISTORY REPEATING
American Business Has Nothing to Fear and Everything to Hope For in the Year Just Ahead

The Monthly Business Review, published by the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland and covering the business and industrial conditions of the Fourth Federal Reserve District, has the following pertinent statement in the December issue:

The year 1920 has been one of surprising developments to many, and yet there is nothing in the record but what students of business conditions had expected. Events have followed one another in logical sequence; step by step a substantial liquidation has taken place, and, because business had foreseen the approaching storm and wisely fortified its sails, the damage done, as compared with the good accomplished, has been surprisingly small.

After all, the record of the year is merely one of history "repeating itself." Nothing has happened but what has heretofore occurred under similar conditions, and what further developments take place may be expected to occur strictly according to rule, in the main.

One important point that many apparently overlook is that the present readjustment movement is not confined to our own borders—it is world-wide. What is taking place here is being gone thru elsewhere, altho in some cases, due to lack of preparation, the process has been more painful, has (Continued on Page Eight)

Newcomerstown People Charged With Bootlegging

The first case to be prosecuted under the provisions of the Cragin act in Tuscarawas-co will be that of Loyal Shoemaker and his mother Hester Mariatt Shoemaker, who reside on a farm just outside of Newcomerstown. Shoemaker was arrested on a charge of selling, furnishing and giving away intoxicating liquor, when a raid upon his home resulted in the confiscation of three barrels of hard cider and a small quantity of liquor alleged to be applejack, early Friday morning.

The raid was the result of a "tip" received from Clarence Carr, who was arrested, Thursday evening and fined $100 and costs on a charge of having a gallon of hard cider in his possession. Under close questioning Carr is said to have admitted that some time ago he secured a quantity of hard cider from Loyal Shoemaker.

The trial of Shoemaker and his mother will be held before Mayor Ross of Newcomerstown, January 4. In the meantime both parties were released after furnishing $1000 bond for their appearance.

The Calder senate committee is now conducting an investigation of the general coal situation. George H. Cushing, managing director of the American Wholesale Coal Association, startled the committee during one of the early sessions by implicating government officials in coal profiteering.

Aged West Lafayette Woman Dies Wed. Eve. From Cancer

Mrs. Lewis Cain, 76, West Lafayette, died at the late home Wednesday evening following several months of illness from cancer. Her condition became critical early Wednesday, and she sank rapidly until Wednesday evening when she died.

Mrs. Cain was a member of the Methodist Protestant church at West Lafayette. She became afflicted with that body about 40 years ago. Besides the husband, who is 76 years old, she is survived by one brother, William Ford of Coshocton and one sister, Mrs. Malinda Fisher also of Coshocton.

The funeral services will be conducted at the Methodist Protestant church Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock with Rev. C. C. Falkenstein, of that church in charge. Burial will be made in the Fair View cemetery.

MINSTREL REVUE BY LOCAL TALENT GETS LIBERAL APPLAUSE

Refreshingly new and novel in the line of minstrelsy was the revue offered Wednesday evening by home talent under the auspices of the Belvedere club, at the Sixth-st. theatre. Composed entirely of local talent, the cast acquitted itself creditably and succeeded in pleasing the large audience in spite of the fact that a minstrel show in order to get a band in Coshocton must be a top notcher.

Costumes, stage settings, music and lines combined to make up in beauty, harmony and pep for the lack of experience on the part of the amateurs, and the fact that it was a home talent production was almost lost sight of at times in the keen enjoyment of the audience.

To choose a star from the galaxy of pretty girls would be as difficult as it would be unfair to the performers, who gave the best they had in them to their tasks, whether in a leading role or chorus work. The gentlemen of the cast were seeking no honors, but gallantly wished all the praise for the success of the production upon "the girls."

As interlocutor Elmer Tankersley essayed a strange role and got away with it in great style. He was at ease in the middle of the ring of cabaret patrons and black face valets, and kept the song hits and rib ticklers moving right along.

Miss Margaret Shepler, as Rosa Marie, a flower girl and David Morrison, as John McGraw in a Harry Lander role were character features in the first and second acts, respectively. Miss Shepler sang "Napoli" according to the best traditions of the loveyorn Italian maiden, while Mr. Morrison could not have been improved upon by less than a professional in his portrayal of the Scotch Highlander, bare knees, kilts and all.

Kenneth Slaughter, end man, was a human dynamo and put everything he had into his numbers. "Read 'em and Weep" and "He Went in Like a Lion" with Jack Herin on the opposite end and Ralph Knoff and Earl Gross at the elbow, at the end men the fireworks were kept up between song numbers to the delight of the audience.

To mention each song number that deserves mention would require space and time beyond the supply at hand. Miss Genevieve Korlin's "I'll Build a World in the Heart of a Rose," Miss Ruth Bolin's "Down the Trail to Home Sweet Home," Miss Frances Dawson's "Sunshine," Harold Brink's "Avalon," William Rowley's "Wait for the Sunshine," Jack Berlin's "You Tell 'em, Ralph Knoff's "You've Been a Daddy to Me," Robert Kerlin's "Waitin' for Me" and David Dawson's "When My Ships Come Sailing Home" were pleasing numbers eliciting merited applause and encores.

The olio, including a dance number by Misses Thelma Ward and Dorothy Kail, and a duet, "What 'Oa Gonna Do When There Ain't No Jazz?" by Miss Ward and Mr. Brink, "Nonsense" by Messrs. Slaughter and Smith, and Ralph Knoff's monolog kept the attention of the audience as only good minstrels can.

Stanley Smith and Kenneth Slaughter's "A Few Minutes of Nonsense" was a bit of clever specialty work that brot down the house. Slaughter's appearance in the balcony crying the wares of the peanut vender in stentorian tones during the act, (Continued on Page Eight)

Treaty of Rapallo is to Be Respected By Italians, Fiumans and Jugo-Slavs—Peace of Southern Europe is Saved By Capitulation at Fiume

ROME, Dec. 30.—War clouds which have been hanging low over southern Europe for nearly two years were rolled back today when Italy began to put into effect the treaty of Rapallo at Fiume.

The threat of an armed break between Italy and Jugo-Slavia over Fiume and other disputed territory on the Adriatic was at an end.

For a year it had been intensified by Gabriele D'Annunzio, the fire brand Italian poet, who seized Fiume and a number of islands on the Dalmatian coast in bold defiance of the Italian government.

D'Annunzio's volunteers, not content with land seizures, even attacked Jugo-Slavia frontier guards and on several occasions the clashes menaced the serenity of all southern Europe from the Mediterranean sea to Roumania.

No longer does the fiery Italian poet's battle flag float over the governor's palace at Fiume. No more do the war craft of D'Annunzio's navy steam slowly back and forth inside the Fiume harbor. Peace has come to Fiume, and the people of Fiume are joyous and happy. They were tired of the military impositions of D'Annunzio's volunteers. Also they hope to get enough to eat now.

The delegation from the Fiume municipal council accepted all of the government's terms. The conditions included the evacuation of the islands of Arbe and Veglia which had been seized by D'Annunzio's volunteers and the demobilization of the Fiuman navy.

It is presumed that the volunteer force that occupied Fiume under D'Annunzio will be disbanded.

Italian regulars will quickly occupy the Fiume garrison, if they have not already done so. Royal warships already patrol the harbor. Workmen will soon be engaged in repairing the damage done by shell and rifle fire.

Under the treaty of Rapallo, which D'Annunzio dramatically denounced and which he declared he would resist to the death, Fiume, is to become a tiny independent state between the frontiers of Italy and Jugo-Slavia. The islands of Arbe and Veglia and the Dalmatian coast north of Zara which the volunteers had occupied will revert to Jugo-Slavia.

Under the Austro-Hungarian and Rapallo treaty, Jugo-Slavia becomes a powerful nation. Her frontier extends from the Adriatic to Roumania.

JOHN DEEDS DIES THURSDAY IN HIS NINETIETH YEAR

He had been ill suffering from a severe cold the past week, but his condition was not considered critical until Wednesday.

Mr. Deeds was born July 1, 1830 in the state of Pennsylvania. He lived there for about 12 years when he, with his parents, moved to Ohio to make their home. He later moved on a farm near West Lafayette after his marriage and he made his home there until the last two years when he moved to Coshocton to live with his daughter. His wife, Miss Elizabeth Corbin, aged 81, survives and is at present living with her son, Theodore Deeds, in West Lafayette. She is also ill with congestion of the lungs. Mr. Deeds had lived on his farm near West Lafayette nearly all his life.

A. West, of Coshocton. Mr. Deeds is survived by one sister, Fannie Smith, of Beach City, O.

The funeral services will be held at the West Lafayette M. E. church Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Burial will be made in a West Lafayette cemetery.

"Live and let live is my motto," says Peterson of Buffalo. "Druggists all over America sell PETERSON'S OINTMENT for 25 cents a large box and I say to these druggists, if any one buys my ointment for any of the diseases or ailments for which I recommend it and are not benefited give them their money back."

"I've got a safe full of thankful letters testifying to the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment for old and running sores, eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, sore nipples, broken breast, itching scalp and skin, blind, bleeding and itching piles."

John Scott, 233 Virginia Street, Buffalo, writes, "Peterson's Ointment is simply wonderful. It cured me of eczema and also piles, and it did it so quickly that I was astonished."

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell because it's done so naturally so easily. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

We lead money on anything of value; don't worry about your obligations; borrow from us and meet them promptly. It's easy. Try it. Coshocton County Finance Co., 109 south Sixth st.

Public Funds For Schools And War

The heads of Ohio State University will ask the legislature for almost four million dollars for the erection of a dozen or more new buildings and their equipment, for more instructors to man them and to meet the increasing needs of an already great and growing institution.

We believe if the actual need for this vast sum is found by the legislature to exist and that the new budget contains no excesses nor extravagances, but merely represents in a financial way the normal growth of this great institution, every dollar of it should be granted. The State University is a splendid school and has made wonderful strides in the past twenty years. This is the worst of all times to hinder its growth thru insufficient appropriations by the general assembly.

Yet it is more than likely that small-calibered politicians, with one eye on the voters back home and with little or no conception of the educational needs of the state, will take down the legislative pruning hook and, with great show of economy, begin to trim and pare at the very place the state can least afford it.

At the same time the national congress will pass the naval and military appropriation bills of which Ohio's share will be at least ten times what the State University heads are asking for that institution and it will pass with great gusto. Thus, by way of preparation for future wars we will willingly spend ten times as much, perhaps twenty times as much, as we will for the education of the state's boys and girls.

All the while illiteracy grows apace. The personnel of the rural teaching force of this state is admittedly impaired of late years and the standards are undoubtedly still rapidly deteriorating. The cantonments of the late war showed that nearly one-fourth of our soldier boys were unable to write their own names or to read a daily paper intelligently. But it was no task to secure funds to equip millions of these young men with death dealing instruments, yet we falter and quibble and stall at legislation designed to equip the youth of the state with the mental weapons which alone will make us the real leader of the world.

The same situation exists in Michigan, Illinois and a number of other mid-western states with respect to their state universities. Their young men are demanding higher education and their legislatures are haggling over the price! It has already been announced by the executive heads of the Ohio State University that if the appropriations for the university are turned down by the next legislature or materially reduced it will mean that our famous university will have to fix a limit on admissions for the next two years.

Think of that! We compel our boys to spend two or three years in military camps, the best years of their lives, but when it comes to gratifying their intellectual cravings we show the niggardly instincts of the miser asked to part with a small portion of his gold. In their public treatment of the curse of war and the boon of an education the American people manifest a mystifying psychology that bodes no good for the future of the Republic.

Arm-Or Disarm

The navy of the United States is being built and organized with a view to possible war with Japan, the Japanese navy with a view to possible war with the United States. So long as the system of competitive armaments exists this policy is forced upon both countries.

It is not that we desire war with Japan, or even expect it, or that Japan desires or expects war with us. Irrespective of the desires and expectations of either nation war is one of the existing risks, and, under the international system which has prevailed up to the present time, armaments and navies are an attempted insurance against defeat in war.

The first step toward disarmament, as the league commission on the subject decided last week, is a pledge from all nations not to increase armaments. This pledge England, for obvious reasons, is willing to give, but Japan, as Viscount Ishii has stated with almost accidental bluntness, cannot afford to limit her expenditures unless "one certain great power" now outside the league will consent to do the same. But unless congress ignores the professional advice of the general board of the navy the power to which Viscount Ishii refers will spend half as much again on its navy next year as it is spending this year.

The report of Secretary Daniels, which is based upon a study of the strategic position by competent naval officers, recommends the expenditure of $160,000,000—more than the total cost of the navy for 1913—on the improvement of the Pacific coast defenses. Hawaii, in Mr. Daniels' opinion, is the "crossroads and key to the Pacific," and should contain a base sufficient to accommodate the entire navy. "Its development on a broad scale as a fleet operating base cannot," Mr. Daniels says, "be too strongly recommended."

Now there is but one power which can menace us in the Pacific, or which we shall ever attack with the major part of our fleet in the Pacific. That power is poor and weak when compared with the United States. It is Japan, aggressively minded and we are more of a menace to Japan than Japan is or can be to us. The present policies of the Japanese government are too imperialistic to be commended, but, irrespective of her intentions, Japan must prepare to defend herself if we seem to be preparing to attack. If sea power is to be contested for in the Pacific as it has already been in the Mediterranean and Atlantic, Japan must be armed.

More good-will on either side is of no avail as long as armed preparation for war continues on both sides. An agreement between the two countries to limit armament is possible, but not probable; the only immediate and practicable way to limit armaments is thru membership in the League of Nations. Conversely, if we fail to enter the League of Nations—or some league—we may arm to the limit of our ability. There is no safe middle ground.

AMERICAN SOPRANO WINS TRIUMPHS UNDER OWN NAME IN HAVANA OPERA

Miss Louise Taylor.

Louise Taylor has proved the valor of her American pluck, when, after four years' success in singing leading dramatic soprano roles in Italian opera under the assumed name of Louise Darolce, she won a veritable triumph in "Aida" at Havana under her own name, Taylor. So qualified was the first acceptance of an American in Havana opera that she was immediately re-engaged for another tour. Now to her following in Italy, South America, Porto Rico, Mexico, Panama, Canada, and the United States is added the enthusiasm of the Cubans.

New York Day-By-Day
By O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The most self-effacing people in the world are those husbands who have married stage stars or top liners in vaudeville—and known in the profession as "pensioners." Most of them come from mediocre jobs and after the visit to the Little Chicago Around the Corner they forsake toil for a life of ease.

It is a peculiar trait of theatrical women to seek husbands out of their profession. The "pensioner" is one of the eternal "Yes, Yes" men. He escorts his wife to and from the theatre and knows that his meal ticket depends upon agreeing to everything.

He always professes the job of being his wife's manager—but in truth she manages him. And so he and the dog goes to the deli to get a slice of meat.

WALT MASON LIBERTY

Said Madame Roland seductively as to her doom she walked 'Oh Liberty, how madly this promises are mocked! What crimes and misdeeds are sprung in freedom's name! And then the guillotine suppressed the noble dame. And still that name is spoken, by tyrants as of yore to people crushed and broken and wallowing in gore. And Russia's crazy masters are talking Liberty and say amid disasters they'll make the whole world free. The freedom they're desiring has shown itself a snare; it sets the freed ones cursing whatever it's been tried. True Liberty strikes Trotsky as what we have in mind. The muck in the slushy and wick the country kind. And while this Trotsky rages poor Russia's in a pique, and it will take her ages to get back to her own. And here's the thing that beats me. In this fair land, I look for a freest freedom fight in wherever I may look. Some one else, I doubt it, who boost that Trotsky skit to watch Russia as she suffers and say no more, great! I wonder what's there no on in living here so long when could cross the ocean and join the happy throng.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. It is easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy, ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolutely satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"That's just it," replied the first "I have arrived at that stage where a pretty girl is a personal insult."

Down in Greenwich Village there is a rather shady hotel run by a bohemian enthusiast of Free Everything. The other evening a party drifted into the little drinking room off the office. In the party was a rather bashful young man who was brought up to observe the conventions.

After a bite to eat, the young man turned to the ladies with, "May I smoke?"

"May you smoke," replied one "Great Heavens, boy, in this joint you can carry out your own dead."

Strive To Have Healthy Skin

Next time you are in a gathering of women note the different conditions apparent in complexion. You will see some filled with blackheads, some dry and rough, some smooth and glossy, some smeared with rouge, some streaked with heavy metallic powders and once in a while you will see one that is a demonstration of intelligence from every point of view. This complexion, the skin is clear and smooth, the pores are small and open, the powder does not show on the firm vigorous skin. Every woman can have a good complexion if she will only use a little discretion. If you would acquire real beauty, the beauty of perfect health, you must replenish your worn-out nerves with lecithin. Nature's own nerve restorer, and put into your blood the invigorating iron which Nature intended it to have for health. In most of the modern foods these and other vitalizing elements have been largely eliminated. Yet to be healthy and beautiful the system must have them. They are found in Bio-feren, not only in proper proportions to restore weakened vitality but in such form as the system can best assimilate them.

A treatment of lecithin and iron peptonate as combined in Bio-feren increases the appetite, aids nutrition and invigorates the patient. And Bio-feren in its pellet form is easy and palatable to take—no liquid

PEOPLE'S FORUM

TO COAL CONSUMERS WHOM THIS MAY CONCERN

Editor Tribune and Times-Age:

1. as one of the coal operators of Coshocton having noticed the article in Tuesday's issue of the local paper with regard to the organization of coal dealers, in an effort to hold up the price of coal, feel it my duty to make an explanation for the information of the people who have not purchased 15 cent coal recently. Those who have purchased this grade of coal need no enlightenment.

In the first place there has not been a meeting of coal operators with a view to holding up the price of coal, of late, and there has not been a committee appointed for that purpose.

It is a plain case of advertising, in order to get some new suckers.

I would say to the public, buy good coal as cheap as you can, but beware of the trap that many have fallen into recently.

December 20, 1920

Our little daughter Margaret was stricken with infantile paralysis in October, 1918. After one year of trying other methods she became worse—unable to walk without falling often. We took her to Mrs. Parrish, the Chiropractor, March, 1920. After several adjustments she is now able to walk and climb steps without falling. Her general health is certainly improved, not having been sick but one day since taking adjustments—which up to that time was frequently and did not grow. We are very grateful and thankful to Mrs. Parrish and grant her privilege to use this letter in any way that will give benefit to suffering humanity.

The Greater Love

By T. B. ALDERSON

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Helen Mowbray sat before the grate and gazed long and seriously at its few dying embers. After pressing her lips sadly across a written sheet in her hand she slowly but deliberately tore it into strips and let it fall into the fire. Her lips tightened, a tremor of emotion swept her face. Then she seemed to determine on some definite action in regard to the theme occupying and distressing her mind, and she allowed the fragments of paper to consume without a glance or quiver, although they had held words that had for a time aroused all the eager long- ing of yearning love.

What now became ashes had been a letter from Hector Duane. He, Helen and her younger sister Lois had been friends at Woodville for some time. Helen had come to the city with Lois to visit an aunt. Lois had returned home a few days previous, but Helen had remained. That morning the letter had come from Hector Duane, a manly, ingenious appeal for her love. Would she decide to become his wife when she returned to Woodville?

A month since this mislaid note had made Helen the happiest girl in the world. Just now it rendered her first undecided and wavering and then wretched. A strange thing had happened. She loved Lois as the very apple of her eye. She had grieved, cheered, treasured her since she was a child ready to sacrifice every- thing for her sake. This devotion had been a sacred solemn promise to her mother when the latter died, and Helen had not been neglectful or un- faithful in a single respect.

And an hour after Lois had gone Helen had found that her sister had unwittingly left behind her a private diary in which for years she had chronicled all the events of her life, and there on a recently written page was a record that fairly crushed Helen for the time being. It read:

"I dare not yet tell Helen as yet of my happiness complete, but oh! how she will love Hector as I do when she knows that he has shown every indication of selecting me above all others as the empress of his heart."

Lois was in love with Hector Duane, never dreaming that his thoughts were fixed upon another! What should she do! The happiness of Lois was everything to Helen. Perhaps Hector had wavered to a choice be- tween the two sisters. An impulse might have led to his fixing his se- lection upon Lois. It would break the tender heart of Lois to lose the first object of her girlish affection. Helen Mowbray decided to make the supreme sacrifice of her life. She must do all she could to secure the happiness of the sister she so cherished, be the heart pain and disappointment what it might to herself.

So the very next day through Elise Duvan, her closest friend, a letter went to Woodville, the contents of which as she realized and planned would soon be spread broadcast and would reach Hector. It indicated that Helen had received the attentions of a wealthy young man well known in the city, plainly hinted that an engagement was pending and in a brief, but courteous note Helen declined the honor Hector Duane had proffered.

"I will do what seems to be my duty," she murmured, but brokenly. "I hope Lois will win him and insure her happiness. She would not have written the way she has in her diary, if there was not some evidence of his having shown her encouraging atten- tions at some time or other."

Thus Helen planned and believed. She did not hear from Hector Duane again. There were, however, letters from Lois and one finally that read: "I have been keeping a deep secret from you, sister dear. I am engaged. To whom? You shall know in my next letter."

THE AGE LIMIT

"AND A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM"

Thousands of little children in beloved AMERICA have answered the call from over seas. They have sacrificed of their pleasures and comforts that the cost of these might be turned into a morsel of food to sustain a while longer the life of their kindred playmates in Europe and China.

Our latest Coshocton County Army shall not have to endure the rigors of physical warfare. There is, therefore, NO AGE LIMIT and the services of both YOUNG and OLD is effective.

The only permanent wounds that can come to any, will be wounds to those who have not enlisted. The only death, will not be in the ranks of this army, but DEATH to the tender mercies in the heart of him who is not moved with COMPASSION

What a glorious privilege to serve in this army, which at ZERO HOUR will charge in this splendid LIFE SAVING endeavor

First Elected In 1872 He is Now Ending His 44th Year In House

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—Uncle Joe Cannon, war horse of the house of representatives today established a new American record.

With the close of a dull house session he passed the mark for length of service set by Justin Smith Morrill of Vermont who as senator and representative served 13 years, nine months and 24 days. The former speaker will begin tomorrow adding new time to his own record, with the hope of reaching the ripe old age of 100 and beating Gladstone's record of 57 years in the British house of commons.

Uncle Joe's achievement will be celebrated in the house tomorrow with Champ Clark himself a veteran who retired March 4 leading the speaking ceremonies Mr. Cannon also will speak, and many of the older members will ask time for a few remarks.

Walking about the corridors of the capitol today, chewing his long, black cigar Mr. Cannon, told a friend there was no use offering a little advice to younger representatives because somebody else always was thinking up similar things and attributed them to him.

Counting his victory in the recent land slide Mr. Cannon has been elected to congress 27 times. He is now ending the 44th year of service. First elected in 1872, he has just kept coming to congress ever since with the exception of two bad Novembers when his people failed to return him. On May 7, next he will be 85 years old.

old. Few of his friends remember that he was born at Guilford, N. C., he served eight years as speaker, and has been doing committee work so long he has forgotten when he started.

Gladstone served 53 years in the British house of commons and with good luck I hope to beat that. The former speaker said.

I have had four years of absence I didn't ask for, and hope to reach the 53, but, then, you never can tell."

IN MEMORIAM

Getting Rid Of The Cause Of Asthma

THURSDAY HEALTH TALK

No. 44.

By R. E. Lynch, D. C., Ph. C.

Health turns the Clock Backward

Asthma attacks are often preceded by chills, depression of spirits, vertigo, bronchial irritations and nervousness. During the attack breathing is in gasps and is an agonizing struggle. Speech is impossible. The attack may last several minutes or several hours. Ordinarily the victim finds no correction that is of any permanent value, but is forced to endure the suffering in the knowledge that the attacks may disable him at any time.

The cause is a degree of displacement of joints of the back bone at the base of the neck sufficient to cause pressure on spinal nerves affecting the bronchial passages. The sufferer from asthma usually has a hump or curve in the spine at the base of the neck.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments restore the joints to alignment and remove the nerve pressure. Hundreds of asthmatic sufferers have found this way the road back to health.

Wheeze Has Left Him

"The asthmatic condition I had has been entirely relieved, even the wheeze having left me since I saw you last, and I am now able to get proper night's rest."

"I consulted several leading specialists before trying chiropractic. I consider it wonderful what chiropractic spinal adjustments have done in restoring my health. I shall always be a booster for this science."

What is an earthquake?

Nothing is more terrifying than an earthquake, in the presence of which we stand powerless to act effectively.
Earthquakes are caused by rapid vibrations of the earth's interior. The displacements—that is, the amplitude of the vibrations—in the great majority of earthquakes is only the fraction of a millimeter.
When it exceeds four or five millimeters the quake is destructive!
Tremors of the earth's crust are measured by means of delicate instruments known as "seismographs," which are freely swinging pendulums, so placed that they trace markings upon paper, which the tracing needle just touches.
These modern instruments do not only tell when an earthquake has occurred, but they record tremors in all parts of the world, and one of the highly significant facts brought to light by this means is that minute and "insensible" tremors of the earth are almost constant and some at least of these tremors consist in three series of waves—the first and second phases being the "preliminary" tremors, and the larger waves the "main shock."

The Moqui Desert.

Never was life so lonely and cheerless as in the desolate hells of the Moquis. Their land is not a tender solitude, but a forbidding desolation of scarped cliffs, overlooking wastes of sand, where the winds wage war on the small shrubs and venturesome grasses, leaving to the drouth such as they cannot uproot. A few scrubby trees, spotting the edge of the plain as if they had looked across the waterless waste and crouched in fear, furnish a little brushwood for the fires of the Moquis who are fighting out the battle of existence that is hardly worth the struggle. The seven villages within a circuit of ten miles have been isolated from the world through centuries, yet they have so little intercourse with each other that their tribal languages, everywhere subject to swift mutations, are entirely unlike.—Susan Arund Wallace.UNCLE WALT'S

VEXATION OF SPIRIT

"WHEN I was in business," said the retired merchant, "I never had time to read much, and I used to look forward to the glad day when I could revel in literature. I felt sure I'd be entirely happy. I used to sit down to the titles of books I intended to read, and when I retired from business I had a list as long as the Russian battle line."And now that I can read all I want to, I don't get any enjoyment out of books. They bore me the worst way I get sleepy as soon as I begin to read, and my wife comes and tells me my snoring is disturbing the neighbors.""It's that way with everything we look forward to," observed the hotel-keeper, sadly. "Man always will be, but is never blest, as some half-baked poet remarked. Young Gooseworthy was in here last evening, bubbling over with happiness. There wasn't anybody around, so he took me into his confidence. He's going to marry the Gwendolyn Jimalong, next month, and he's perfectly satisfied that his married life will be one long stretch of sunshine. He seems to have the idea that he's going to do something original when he gets married, but the idea isn't new. Men have been getting married ever since Christopher discovered Columbus, Ohio, and every doggone man jack of them had the idea that everlasting bliss was going to be inaugurated on the wedding day."I listened to Gooseworthy for three hours, and hadn't the heart to say anything that would dampen his enthusiasm. His twittering recalled the long vanished days when I was getting ready to be married. I felt about it then just as he does now. I thought the parson opened the gates of paradise when he joined two loving hearts.
My wife lived up to all the plans and specifications, and was and is one of the best women in the United States, but I hadn't been married three months before I had a sneaking conviction that the man who gets married is a chump."A good many optimists say that a married man doesn't need any more money than a single one, if he marries the right sort of woman, but they might as well go to the blackboard and demonstrate that two and two make two, instead of four. I fell for that cheerful theory when I was married. I was earning enough to keep myself comfortably, and never had any financial worries. I could have been buried for less money than it took to be married, and the expenses from that time forward were double what they used to be, although my wife was so economical she used to make waists and such things for herself out of my superannuated shirts."Oh, doggone it, there isn't any unadulterated happiness in matrimony. I wonder that young fellows like Goose-worthy don't look around them, and contemplate the dejected appearance of the majority of husbands. But even if they did, it wouldn't do them any good, I suppose, for they are full of pipe dreams, and they think the girls they are going to marry are different from all other girls, and that they will prove exceptions to the general rule."I had a wise old uncle in those halcyon days, and about a week before the wedding day, he backed me into a corner and handed me a dust-proof package of wisdom. He tried to lead me into taking a sensible view of the future. He talked about the cares and responsibilities that would be mine after the wedding, and wanted to know if I felt equal to them. He tried to show me that I wasn't going to marry an angel, but a human being like myself, with a human being's faults and frailties."I let him get that far, and then I told him that his gray hairs alone saved him from having his head remodeled, and said I never wanted him to darken my door, and he never did.
I had to darken it myself, with walnut stain. But many a time afterward, I recalled his wise words and wept over his grave."

Well Off.

"After all a man never knows when he's well off."

Nut Walter Wanted.

An old lady, after waiting in a confectionery store for about ten minutes, grew grossly impatient at the lack of service. Finally she rapped sharply on the counter.
"Here, young lady," she called, "who waits on the nuts?"—Everybody's Magazine.

cent Thrift Stamp and a $5 War Savings Stamp will be issued. All

TO SAVE MONEYWonderful Speech Delivered to Thrift Delegates by William Mather Lewis.Columbus, O., (Special).—The speech of William Mather Lewis, director of the Savings Division of the United States treasury department, to the school children who attended the first Thrift Congress to be held by the school children in the United States, was considered so good by the Ohio War Savings Committee that it asks every school child in the state to read it. The speech follows:
"Only a little while ago, there went out from Ohio and the other states in our country and from the nations of Europe millions of boys to wage for you and me the war for freedom.
Through their efforts we are allowed to enjoy a peace and independence.
Many of those boys did not return from the war. Nine million graves dot the fields of Flanders and of France. The American school boy and girl of today has the responsibility not only of making good on his or her own account but of taking the place in industry and commerce of those boys who left the factories and shops and farms. Upon you rests the double responsibility of making good.
You are not only to make good for yourselves but you are to take up the burden of those who died for you."Millions of dollars were shot away in the war, thus leaving a shortage of capital. Capital is only another term for money at work. The world is faced by a huge debt today. It is faced by a shortage of transportation facilities and of buildings. The money to supply these needs must come from the small savings of all the people.
In your work in selling War Savings Stamps, you are doing more than helping your government and putting those who buy the stamps on the road to prosperity. You are creating capital that will benefit your own country and the world. The capital created by investment in government securities and the payment of taxes means just as much to the welfare of our people as does capital put into private investment. Our government stocks the rivers with fish; it develops barren land; it cuts great waterways such as the Panama canal; it stamps out disease in cattle; it teaches intensive agriculture, and in a thousand other ways makes our land yield more than it otherwise could."As members of this Thrift Congress, you are leaders in the crusade to turn America from a nation of fol-ish spenders to a nation of wise savers."If you cultivate habits of saving rather than of wastefulness, you can secure a college education or a start in business or any one of the other things you are looking forward to.
You should not delay in laying out for yourselves a financial program, so that from every dollar you earn or are given you may secure the largest benefit."This is your task as thrift representatives of the great state of Ohio.
First, to live and work that the boys who died for you shall not have died in vain; second, to aid your government and to practice every day patriotism by the promotion of government securities. Third, through the savings encouraged by the purchase of government securities to create the needed capital to wipe away the burden of war and put the world once more back on a normal footing; and, finally, to change the habits of American youth from foolish spending to wise conservation which will insure comfort to themselves and to coming generations."The privilege and responsibility which are before you are greater than those which any other generation of young Americans has faced."ANOTHER THRIFT CONGRESS TO BE HELD NEXT FALLSchool Children Will Get Delightful Trip to Columbus For Selling U. S. S.Columbus, O., (Special).—Ohio school children will hold another Thrift Congress next fall. This announcement has just been made by the Ohio War Savings Committee, following the receipt of much flattering comment on the first Thrift Congress for School Children, held here this fall.

After the Years

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union)
"Now, my love, shine!" spoke Iona Tyrrell's mother, proudly.

"I fear you overestimate my power to dazzle, mamma dear," said Iona, but her eyes sparkled and she could not conceal the emotion of the most auspicious moment in her young life.

Iona had never had much of a chance to shine in the world unless being the bright, cheerful life of a little social set in a dull, remote village counted for something. Her parents were poor, her environment humble; for the first time in her life she now stood arrayed in a garb that might have graced a duchess, and in the silhouette by her side was a full complement of finery to the feminine heart most dear. Her hat was exquisitely dainty and becoming; she had a certain dark beauty that defied powder or rouge and there was grace and delicacy about her figure that would make most people look twice at her.

John Barclay, her mother's brother, had chanced to make his first visit in years to the Tyrrell home. He stood well in the city; he had money.
His two daughters had married, and the whim seized him to do something for his sister's only child. It had suddenly occurred to him, realizing the vast contrast between his own sumptuous home and the Tyrrell humble cottage, that he had hardly done his duty by his hard working sister. Then comprehending that nothing would please her more than to have Iona see the world and the world see her, he invited Iona to his home on a long visit and had insisted on providing her with all that would make her presentable.

"She has too much in her as to beauty and character to waste her life in dull humdrum winnowing," declared Barclay. "Give her a new insight into the world that means something sister. She shall have the best in life while she is with me."

So mother and daughter parted and the sumptuous automobile dashed down the winding road, and watching it to the last Mrs. Tyrrell felt as if it was some devouring monster that had bereft her of her best beloved child. Mr. Barclay noticed that all along the road the first mile of progress Iona kept peering to her right, and as they approached an old-fashioned place she took her handkerchief and suddenly waved it at a young fellow driving some cattle into a field.

"Who was that, Iona?" inquired her uncle.

"Just an old, true friend. I told him yesterday I was going away. I suppose I was foolish, but I cried like a baby. See, uncle, he gave me this pretty ring as a keepsake," and Iona extended a dainty finger bearing a slender gold circlet.

"You want to forget it and him too, Iona," spoke her uncle, almost sourly.
"Village swains scarcely count in city ways. As to the ring, don't wear it.
I have a diamond circlet awaiting you when we get home."

Iona blushed and drew the ring from her finger, but only to later place it on her neck chain out of sight, but not of mind. It reposed nearer to her heart than was all. She kept silence as to Wayne Tresham, but only because her mother had warned her not to spoil her visit to the city by crossing the imperious will of her uncle.

"I shall write, just as I promised," whispered Iona to herself. "I shall not forget Wayne, no matter what comes. He is good, true and honest.
And he had spoken of coming to see me in the city. What will uncle say if he does?"

The city proved an alluring magnet for Iona. She was dazzled; she enjoyed all its variety and excitement; she was made a great deal of and life went like a dream. Secretly she wrote to Wayne, but after her second letter received word from him that he was going to leave home to take a new position, would be traveling a good deal and would send her his prima nent address as soon as he was settled.

But a year passed by. Mrs. Tyrrell died, Iona was adopted by Mr. Barclay and only occasionally did she hear from Wayne. They were not engaged, and she could scarcely expect more than the few formal letters he wrote.

There came an episode in her life where Mr. Barclay urged a marriage between Iona and a young man he had always liked. The latter turned out badly, the engagement was broken and Mr. Barclay never again attempted to direct Iona in regard to her love affairs.

Dear, true soul! She had none except so far as Wayne Tresham was concerned, and she never faltered in her trustful, loyal devotion for him.

And then came the reward of the waiting years. Mr. Barclay had large western interests and one day he introduced Iona to his new manager.
He was Wayne Tresham. Mr. Barclay had never known that he was the old-time lover of Iona.

It was only after the marriage that Iona told him all about it. Wayne had made a name and a fortune, and Mr.
Barclay could present no objection to the marriage. Intelligent young man who had won his own confidence and esteem.

So the romance of the life of Iona Tyrrell had worked out as fate intended and desired, and she was radiantly happy in shining only in all her loveliness for the one man in the world who held all her trustfulness and affection.

"Ice Caves."

The walls of caves often become cooled to such a point in winter or during the frosty nights of spring and fall that the percolating waters freeze.
The most celebrated ice cave in the world is that of Dobosch in Hungary, situated in the Carpathians, at an elevation of about 2,700 feet.

BODY OF SERGEANT WAGSTAFF ARRIVES FROM FRANCE FOR BURIAL, CAMBRIDGE

Word was received by Mrs. C. W.
Miller of Herbig-ay, Wednesday, stating that the body of her brother, Sergeant H. I. Wagstaff, a member of the Fourth Division, Co. H, 39th Infantry, who died from wounds he received in both legs while fighting in the Argonne forest drive, August 3, 1918 had arrived in the New York harbor, prepared for burial. The body will arrive at Cambridge, his home, some time in the near future the message from Washington D. C. read.

After Wagstaff was wounded, he was taken to Base hospital No. 32 in France where he died August 5. His wounds became infected while lying on the battle field and before the proper medical attention could be given to save his life he died.

Mr. Wagstaff formerly worked for his brother-in-law, C. W. Miller when Mr. Miller and H. H. Bainter conducted an electrical shop on south Sixth-st.

Sergeant Wagstaff enlisted in the United States army when he was 17 years old. While engaged in the battle of Manila following the Spanish-American War in '98, Mr. Wagstaff was wounded in the right leg. He retired from the United States army previous to the World War, but when he felt his country needed him he re-enlisted and was put on the front line in France. He was well trained and assisted in training Uncle Sam's soldiers while in France before he was sent to the firing line.

Sergeant Wagstaff enlisted in the U. S. army from his home town in Cambridge. He was the first Guar-ney boy to fall on the battle field of France and his is the first soldier body from that country to be returned.

As soon as the body arrives at the late home, a military funeral will be conducted by the American Legion boys of Cambridge. The Coshocton legion boys of Ralph Courtwright Post 65 have been asked to assist the Cambridge legionnaires in conducting the funeral.

Sergeant Wagstaff was born in Cambridge May 5, 1885. He was a member of Grace M. E. church here for a number of years. The church has already awarded the late sergeant a gold star on its memorial tablet in honor of his supreme sacrifice.

MINSTREL

number by Mr. Smith started a rapid fire argument between the "colored gentleman" that ended with Slaughter sliding down a rope to the orchestra circle and taking his place before the curtain alongside Mr. Smith. The piece ended with a fight between Smith and Slaughter and the latter's reinforcements.

Perhaps the most enthusiastically received number was the duet by Miss Flerence Frazer and David Dawson.
"Something" Rivaling it was Miss Ward and Mr. Brink, the audience showing a decided preference for the duet numbers by soprano and tenor combinations.

Miss Dorothy Dawson at the piano gave confidence to the singers and dancers. She was supported by the house orchestra.

With the strain of the first appearance worked off, the cast can be expected to settle down to even higher class work at the second and last production tonight. The seat sale was reported better Thursday than Wednesday, indicating, perhaps, that many preferred to allow the amateurs one night of facing the music for the sake of seasoning before looking them over.

It requires no little amount of work and courage for the young men and women to produce an attraction such as that being shown at the Sixth-st theatre, and the attendance of an appreciative audience is most encouraging to the players. Critics forget professional actors and actresses, and glory in the proficiency of the hometown boys and girls in a line of work strange to most of them. It's well worth seeing.

A Gracious Lady

By ALVAH J. GARTH

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

"A kindly, gracious lady, doubtlessly," observed Mrs. Carter Holmes lightly, "but I understand she has seen her day."

"Yes," nodded her visitor, Mrs. Varney. "They had money once and quite ruled the social destinies of Williston. Everything went in a bank crash and they have moved here to feel less the humiliation of their affairs."

"Of course she will have the wisdom and prudence not to break into outside. Mrs. Wharton and her daughter Isola must be in a measure, shall we say, unsophisticated and crude."

"I think that about expresses it," nodded Mrs. Varney, and so these two active outposts of society dismissed the theme.

No notice would have been taken of Mrs. Eunice Marston if she had not been an old college friend of Mrs.
Vera Repregle. The latter ruled society and her word was law in its operation. She had quietly told some chosen friends the history of the Whartons, and had given them to understand pretty well that she intended to recognize them and insist upon their doing so also.

Certainly when the Whartons first appeared in a public social way they could find no fault with the dignity, graciousness and refinement of Mrs.
Wharton. As to the daughter Isola, those who were not fully charmed with her loveliness, or their scheming mothers, for young Harold Repregle manifestly was attracted toward her from the start.

"Oh, you needn't imagine that Mrs.
Repregle is doing anything more than courteously showing attention to an old friend," insisted Mrs. Varney, who had a daughter on her hands. "It's obligatory and quite the thing to do.
But, trust me, she will not see her son thrown away on a penniless girl like Isola Wharton."

There were frowns and shrines however when at a second social function Mrs. Repregle made Isola quite the queen of the occasion.

Following this was a grand and exclusive occasion at a tea, where the cream of local society was supposed to be in evidence and invitations were not liberally given out. There was a good deal of secret longing for the distinction of "being in" at the function, and the hosts of those ambitious ladies eager to push themselves forward were evident and in evidence whenever two or more of the social set discussed the coming tea.

"Mrs. Repregle is so queer," commented Mrs. Carter Holmes. "She thinks more of giving some lonely, obscure person, in plainness than keeping strictly within ethical social lines, don't you think?"

"Yes, that is oftentimes her way," nodded Mrs. Varney. "If she followed out set social rules, I think you, Mrs.
Holmes, should pout."

"Oh! I scarcely expect the honor," declared the lady, addressed, while all the time she coveted the distinction more than any other honor Mrs. Repregle might confer upon her. There were others who had planned for the privilege.

It was a day of days for Mrs.
Wharton when the occasion arrived.
All the old tenderness of her friend Mrs. Repregle seemed to develop and enlarge as she greeted her. Mrs.
Wharton was somewhat older than the majority of the guests who were mainly young married women. The contrast to their stylish attire in her plain black dress that had seen service, did not detract from the matronly graciousness of her nature which captivated all right thinkers in the little assembly.

"You will please pour, Mrs. War-ton," spoke Mrs. Repregle, and varied emotions were aroused by the announcement. Mrs. Holmes caught her breath hard. Mrs. Varney looked angry and sullen, others experienced the pangs of severe disappointment and envy.

It was not policy to reveal or retain these sentiments, however, and even those who were filled with spite suppressed any exhibition of the same.
Like a courtly true gentleness of the past Mrs. Wharton spread kindly words and smiles, and with an irresistible grace and generous hospitality did her part well.

"Oh, well, it would have been more humiliating if our hostess had chosen Mrs. Daly," observed Mrs. Holmes.

"Or that forward Mrs. Doty," added Mrs. Varney. "It is simply an old lady humored and petted."

It had been the most gracious compliment Mrs. Repregle could have paid to an old and dear friend and Mrs.
Wharton was deeply affected toward-ly. It strengthened and sustained her social position and she was content and happy.

Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Varney seated near an open window, at the same time chanced to glance out into the garden. Both started and then exchanged meaning looks.

"My dear, that settles it," said the former, staring hard.

"Oh, quite!" purred Mrs. Varney.
"The Whartons have certainly captured the family affections."

For there, sheltered by a great blooming rose bush, was Harold Rep-regle, and Isola Wharton was with him, and he was kissing her, and the two ladies knew that an engagement would soon be announced.

PAST YEAR HAS

worked greater hardships, and must necessarily mean a longer period of convalescence. Japan, for instance, is in the throes of a severe depression; moratoria have been declared in China and in some countries in South America. European nations are unable to arrange for even the payment of interest on national indebtedness. Commercial mortality is everywhere large, yet in the United States failures during 1920 have been less than the average for several years preceding the great war.

Our resources are greater than they have ever been before, we have ample capital for all legitimate enterprises, energy, skill and brains in abundance.
The markets of the world are open to us as never before, we are capable of commercial expansion to a degree not now dreamed of, the needs of a rapidly increasing population must be supplied; our possibilities, in fact, have never seemed greater. Back of all this we have a Gibraltar in our tried and tested banking system, the policies of which, while often unjustly condemned, are now being re-examined in a relative freedom from financial troubles when compared with those of other nations.

The application to our business situation of the ancient Chinese proverb that "things are never as good nor as bad as they seem" seems most appropriate at this time. Most of the things we expect never happen. While at no time is business entirely free from difficulties in greater or less degree, yet there is never a situation so gloomy that hopeful signs may not be discerned.

Only last spring there was considerable apprehension of a shortage of food crops, but it did not materialize.
On the contrary, we have produced one of the greatest agricultural yields in our history. During the summer and early fall months the voice of the calamity howler was heard predicting all sorts of business disaster, but these prophecies have not been borne out by the facts. It was urged that the Federal Reserve Board's policy of undertaking to prevent further undue inflation of the currency and of credit would ruin our foreign trade, but figures just published show that for the month of October the money value of our exports reached the surprising total of $751,000,000—the largest amount since last March, and the third largest in the history of the nation. Exports, in terms of money value, for the first 10 months of 1920, total $6,832,000,000 as against $6,499,000,000 in the corresponding period of 1919.

When the economic history of 1920 is written, no small credit will be given to the policies of the Federal Reserve Board, which have been un-swervingly adhered to in spite of criticism and vituperation from many powerful sources. Without fear or favor, the board has consistently done that which, in its judgment, would result in the greatest good for the greatest number. The good effects, that may be traced directly or indirectly to these policies may not now be apparent to many, but with time will come a realization that they have been founded on sound principles and that our future prosperity is assured by them.

We are still sailing the Sea of Readjustment. Some squalls have blown up, but the business ship has successfully weathered the storm thus far.
The fact remains, however, that we are still on the sea and cannot leave the ship until we reach port. We believe that land is in sight, and that within a reasonable time we shall safely reach refuge in the harbor of Stabilized Business.

Faux Pas de Luxe.

Mrs. Jones had never entertained the sewing circle of Horseshoe Bend tho' she did not commit an absent-minded faux pas of some kind. She would either forget to invite her next-door neighbor or forget to entertain the sewing circle. She was so absent-minded that her own children began to get skeptical of her mental health after she had taken their medicine on several occasions. This afternoon she was making a final effort to entertain without "pulling a bone." Everybody seemed to be present, and local gossip was being swallowed with as much relish as was Mrs. Jones' delicious ice cream, when suddenly Mrs. Jones put down her saucer, gracefully arose and said: "The afternoon has been just delightful, but I really must be going."—Virginia Reel (University of Virginia).

The Wet Woods.

Did you ever put on a waterproof, rubber boots, an old hat and wander about through the woods on a rainy day? A foggy day with no just as well, or even a day after a rain, if things have not had time to dry.
The moisture has brought out new and brilliant colors. Gray, dull-colored lichen has turned a brilliant green.
The color has become rich and variegated on the bark of the trees. Your feet sink into soft moss, in which a thousand new shades have developed; red, green and amber, with all its gradations of tone. Mushrooms have appeared everywhere of every color in the rainbow, glistening and brilliant. The very rocks themselves have taken on a new hue, as all stones do when wet. Everything is wholly freshened up. And how the birds sing!
—How the squirrels chatter!—Christian Science Monitor.

of times when the dumping of the ashes and dirt in the alleys was the only means of preserving the level surface. It was agreed that discretion should be used in the distribution of such refuse, in keeping with the civilization relating to that subject.
